GUERILLA DESPERADOES IN MERCEN COUNTY A FEMALE GUERILLA .- On Friday evening a nd of guerlllas, lcd by a notorious character, uan with hut one arm, named Berry, former ly of Morgan's command, attacked the stage near Shawaeetown, robbed the passengers and rifled the mail-bags. Mr. James Saffell, the age contractor, was driving behind the lumng vehlele in his bnggy, and, while attemptto make his escape from the guerillas, was wn fram his buggy over a stone fence and dly bruised by the fall. The horse and buggy were secured, but Mr. S. escaped discovery. The outthroats then proceeded down the road and robbed the toll-gate keeper near Shawneetown | The reasons why the negroes were indue if "to of a small amount of funds. After this daring exploit, the band moved in the direction of Harrodsburg, relieving the tool-gate keeper near that place of cash and various articles, and then

The Savings Bank was honored with the first eall. The managers of the institution observed the movement, and hastily closed and barred the doors hefore the sconndrels could gain an entrance. The robbers fired several shots as the doors were being closed, but no injury was done by the same. Finding they could not force the doors, the guerillas proposed to lire the building but, before they could put the design into execu tion, the citizens, who had arrued themselves and collected to defend their homes, commenced fring on the robber band. The outlaws were taken by surprise, and, greatly alarmed, fled from the town, retreating in the direction of Perryville. Capt. Berry had his horse shot from under him in the skirmish. He sprang to his feet, and deliberately fired at a Federal soldier rselack, wounding him so badly that he rom his steed, and, securing the riderless it, and escaped from the town with his band. E One of the peculiarities of this band of cutthroats is the officer second in command, recognized by the men as Lieutenant Flowers. The officer in question is a young woman, and her right name is Sue Munday. She dresses in male attire, generally sporting a full Confederate uniform. Upon her head she wears a jaunty plumed hat, beneath which escapes a wealth of dark-brown hair, falling around and down her shoulders in luxuriant curls. She is possessed of a cornely form, has a dark, piereing eye, is a bold rider, and a daring leader. Prior in connecting herself with Berry's gang of outiaws, she was as 90 clated with the band commauded by the notorious scoundrel Captaiu Alexander, who met his doom-a tragic deatha short time ago in Southern Kentucky.

Lientenant Flowers, or Suc Munday, is a practised robber, and many ladies, who have been so unfortunate as to meet her on the highway, ear testify with what sang froid she presents a pisto and commands "stand and deliver." Her name is becoming widely known, and, to the ladles, it is always associated with horror. On Friday | fear to create an excitement which might lead evening she robbed a young lady of Harrodsburg of her watch and chain. If the eltizens had not so unceremnujously expelled the thieving band from the town, in all probability this she-devil ns would have nold her reatl of the ladles of the place, and robbed them of their jewellerv and valuables. She is a dangerous character, and, for the sake of the fair ladies | does the hypocrisy of such articles as we have of Kentucky, we sincerely hope that she may soon he captured and placed in a position that will prevent her from repeatlug her unlady-like

CALIFORNIA ANU MEXICAN COTTON .- A COFFEepondeut of the New York Journal of Comerce, writing from the Rio Bravo Ranche, Tern river, sends a sample of cotton which was grown from a few seeds he furnished a neighborng farmer on the river last year. It was planted lu June, grew and matured well. He picked it | Leen burned, and there is little doubt that the in November. There was afterward procured from the Bureau of Agriculture a quart of the North Carolina cotton seed, which he planted in June. On the 3d of Angust it stood three feet high and looked fine. This planter came from the be grown there to advantage. He has nuder atand twelve feet high. One other person has of land on this river, who offer one balf the interest for the small sum of live thousand dollars, including water for Irrigation and mill purpose. A letter from C. K. Britell, a Vermont emigrant, from Mazatlan, in Sonora, Mexico, says he has the only Yankee garden lu that quarter, thirty-five miles out from Mazatlan. He commenced plowing his field for cofton on the 4th of July. The rains commenced there the 25th of June. He has taken up oue hundred and fifty acres to put into cotton, and pays for fencing and tilling it one hundred and sixty dollars; says that Messrs, Sturgls & Penjonson's erop is all giuned and sent to Europe. It turned out eighty bales, of four hundred pounds each, from seventy-three acres. It was planted after the rains had ceased falling. If it had been planted carlier the rain would probably bave caused it to produce from five to six hundred pounds to the acre. Britell sent in some nice ripe bolls of cotton growing wild upon his ranche, also good samples of white Mexicau engar, and a bottle of mezcal, an alcoholic spirit, made from a plant called mezeal lough Americans are invited there, and lands given them by the Mexican Government, the natives annoy the Americans all they can they are jealous and thievish, and seek to plun der them at every opportunity.

When "Edmond Kirke," Col. Jucquess Horace Greeley, and others, under the inspira tion of President Lincoln, entered upon the Ni agera Falls and other negotiations for peace with the robol comissioners or agents, as soon as it was found that Lincoln had committed a blunder, his agency in the matter was disclaimed and the cat's paws for getting his roasted ebestnuts out of the hot ashes were disowned. This same system of abandoning the offspring of Mr. tablish a foundling hospital, for old Francis P. Blair has become a victim also. The Washingtou Republican is authorized to say that the President has no recollection of sending any essage or messenger to General McClellan, or of receiving any from him, at any time sluce he was relieved from the command of the Army of the Potomae, and certainly none such as mentioned in the published letter of General Naglec, and the Republican also adds: "If the President sent a message in writing, the writing can be produced; if a messenger, he can be named. Let either be done if it can." It has been done already as regards the messenger, who was the elder Blair, and that is the reason why his son, Montgomery, made the distinct assertion in his New York speech that the President had concerted with Gen. Grant to bring Gen. McClellan again into the field as the Lieutenaut-General's Adjunct, if he would celine the Chicago nomination. Of course, Blair's agency will now be disowned, although it is beyond the bounds of human probability that he would have acted except upon some suggestion from the President. But the declaration of the Ex-Postmaster-General that he believed McClelian to be true to the cause of the country, and that the President shared that belief, is From the record and cannot be denied.

Democratic doctrine; devoted to the Constitution, and the Integrity of the Union, and as such we place ourselves square on the Chicago platform and the letter of acceptance of General McClel-lan, which our readers will find in today's issue.

The hypocritical manner in which the abitionists concealed their original intentions (teal the negroes in Kentucky, under the plea that their use was necessary for the salvation of the government, is one of the most damning evilences of their perfidious conduct. Taking up v secident an old fragment of the Frankfort commouwealth, published since the adjournnent of the legislature, we find the following aragraph: There are reports that the negroes are leaving There are reports that the negroes are leaving their homes and enlisting in the army. It appears that most of this work is In sections where chels and rebel sympathizers do most abound. Might not the fact be accounted for on the hypothesis that rebel emissarles are Inducing uegroes to act thus, in hopes that sufficient excitencts will be created by it to bring on a hostile collision between the State and the national course? Verily, it strikes us more than pro ble that that is the source of the move, and the excitement arising from it.

These outrages, of which merely reports had been heard by the abolition organ at the State capital, were all confirmed facts at the time the aragraph was penned, but the pear was not ripe and it was necessary then to throw the odium of negro stealing upon rebels and rebel ympathizers, and the blacksnake Editor rought forward the hypothesis that negroes were entired to leave their homes and enlist in the army by men who were anxious to create into collision with the Federal government act thus" are to be found in the conduct of abolition emissaries from other States. between whom and the recreant Lincolnites of our State there was a perfect undertanding. Kentucky had been assured over and over again that if she would fill her quota rom her enrolled eitizens her slave population would be unmolested. Governor Bramlette thereupou issued his proclamation, and our State was as far advanced in recruiting under the call then to be filled as other States were. But pending the energetle exertions of our Exentive and the formation of rendezvouses in various parts of our Stale, agencies were established at different points on the north bank of the Ohio river at which men wearing the Federal uniform were actively engaged in ren the very body of our State, were prowling around home tends, and at night juducing slaves ands over the river. In "sections where reb els and rehel sympathisers do most abound," Eddyville, in Lyon county, and Dyersburg, in Crittenden county, detachments of negro solcearing its uniform, marched and took off y hands upon, earrying them away to other and profitable trade by selling them as substitutes, or by swindling them ont of their bounty noney if they enlisted voluntarily. Thus the sebeme for robbing Kentn ky of her lave property, which was first deliberately vlaumed at Washington, was concealed here as long as possible, and apostates from the tradltions of the State, who had become full converts to the black code of abolition, aided to keep up the deception, until such time as Kentneky could be placed under martial law, and the State constitution and State laws superseded by the military code, enforced not by the courts nuder the ordinances of our Legislature, but the bayonets of the Federal army. Then the mask was thrown off; then the Commonwealth did not to collision, but it boldly proclaimed, as a new hypothesis, that those opposed to the running off of our slaves were guilty of discouraging enlistments, and, consequently, amenable to and the other sholition sheets, how disgusting quoted above appear! With what snpreme contempt must they be regarded by all who have loyally adhered to the true honor, dignity, and peace of Kentucky!

LOSSES OF THE PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY This company is a heavy loser by the rebel in vasiou. All its depots, station-houses, water tanks, shops, and bridges, accessible to the rebels, have been burned, and the work of destrue tion is still going on. The Osage bridge has bridge over the Gasconade either has met, or will meet, the same fate. Both are large and expensive structures, and it will cost a round sum to replace them. This is the second bridge over the Osage burned by them during the war the first having been destroyed by C. F. Jack son in 1861.

The actual value of structures and materi deslroyed on the Pacific road will not be less than $200,000, and even this is but a portion o the aggregate damage inflicted on the company At the beginning of the Missouri invasion the road was doing an unusually heavy and profitable business, and the work of construction to ward the State border was being prosecuted with all possible vigor, with the view of com t leting it by the last of December. All this is of course, stopped. The damage falls heavily upon the company, but the whole community is affected by the loss.

In taking down the name of Abraham Lincoln and putting in its place the name of General Geo. B. McClellan as our candidate, together with the balance of the Democratic ticket, may require us to define our position, which we propose doing briefly, at this time. This paper will be devoted to the interests of the people of Lawrence county, and believing their interests best secured by the support of the Chicago nominees, General George B. McClellan and the Hon. George II. Peudleton, we have hoisted their names to the mast-head, there to remain until the election in November. Our efforts will be devoted to the dissemination of sound Democratic doctrine; devoted to the Constitution, and the Integrity of the Union, and as such

Put then the abolitionist replies, "The poor appressed African will remain in bondage," that is true, and such illustrious men as Washington, Jellerson, Madison, Monroe, and Jacken, and the greatest of our great men of the ast, agreed to leave him there. I appeal to all ober men—to all who love their race and attentionally who have the interest of our or country at heart, and ask in the name of illustrious founders of our great Republic, n we do letter than follow the example of wes of more white men than every negro in the corld is worth. Our people area calculating ople, and when not blinded by familical zeal ge the social condition of a savage, unpro-ive race. What father or mother would the life of their darling boy to change the l condition of a hundred or even ten thouand negroes? I venture to say there is not one uch to be found. cense debt! What folly! The debt, enormousit ls, ls not the dust in the balance, when ompared to the life of our youth.

But I must, as a Southern man, give a picture
the result of success in freeling all the shives the South, and restoring Federal rule over the country. The whole South being conquered, and the slaves set free, say five and a half milous of slaves turned loose, without home or master, with the principal towns and cities garsened with a force say of three hundred thouind negroes. The black population cannot get at of the country, and, indeed, the abolitionand jobe as traphics of this herril fanaticalled abolitic rism!! If successful, the white in the South will be annihilated sooner of

The white ruce gone, this Soutbern mutry once so prosperous, and producing so uch for the benefit of the world in general, if he a counterpart of that Africa from whence e negro came—a howling wilderness and destroyer producing nothing for the common weal, d, to bring about this result, will cost the veniment tyet another half million of the idea and given of our world, the call is always.

thest of our own race, to recurn six minutes noise than savages to burbarism and a savage, and this too in an age of enlightenment, is olly so revolting, so gigantic and suppendous, it it is a wonder all nations do not ery out ainst us for shame! And while all this is go-

But then the scuttmental abolitionist insists this course will never do, that nuless we move the cause, which he believes is slavery, a dicase of rebellion will never be enred. I have before stated, neither slavery nor a sire for its protection was the cause of this up these were simply the "protects," as Gen. In conclusion, I must say, if this course is dopted, we of the South, who, amidst all the fiftenlities and trials of dungeon life, robbery, and devostation, have adhered to the Union as e still intend to, may still bope to have a home mong our native hills. But, in all candor, I must say the present policy, if pursued to final necess, which is yet a long way off, will ruin tery Union man in the South, and make it necessary to abandon home and all its endear, sany to abandon home and all its endear. seary to abandon home and all its endear cesary to abandon nome and an its endear-nents, and go penniless among strangers to seek sustenance to sustain life. But in addition to all this it may be truly said, the present polley is destroying also the slave as well as the white trace. Ask any well informed army officer who is mipuejudiced, and he will tell you the same.

to be an injury to the race more to be dreade than all that being hi bondage has ever done. The end, then, of our present efforts unde the policy of abolitics is in, will bring roll an demorelization and death to our own race and min and a return to savage life and but harism of the negro race, and the final concilion and sum of the whole history may be written and understood by the one awful wor ruin! ans!! Practured Bones in Animals—Fracture of actes, occurring among next stock, is generally considered as a justifiable cause for their destruction. But I object to this summary mode of disposing of unfortunate, yet valuable animals; for the truth is, many are killed that right be saved. The trouble of managing, and to extense of treating cases of fracture, often acter bushandmen from performing a duty insumtent on them in view of protecting their moperty, and acting the part of the "good Samaritan;" but the fact is, the trouble and expense are mere trifles when the assembless of a valuable animal is involved. The remedy, in asse of a simple fracture of bones, under the improved system of practice, is neither tedious nor expensive. The bones unite very readily, if kept in contact, and the unity is secured by incaus of starched bandages. Where there is any laceration of the soft parts, and the bone is PRACTUPIN BONES IN ANIMALS -Fracture of incare of starched bandages. Where there is any laceration of the soft parts, and the bone is broken into several pleecs, the better way is to put an end to the sufferings of the poor creature, for recovery is impossible. An animal under treatment for fracture may be placed in the trevis, if necessary, but I prefer to let the patient have its liberty in a hox-stall. We know of no right or privilege that the Louisville Journal has to intermeddle with the affairs of the Board of Enrollment of this Dis-trict. The members of that body are quite as likely to understand their own business as th Journal can be to understand it for them. We said that we had heard loud complaints "from various quarters" that men not able-bodied were forced into the service, but we didn't say or imply that such complaints were made especially or even at all, in regard to the Board in this district. We have heard complaints from other citles and from towns, and we certainly have not chosen to single out, as an object of rebuke or suspicion, a Board, which, so far as we know, or have reason to believe, has done its duty as vell as the other Boards of the State. The Editor of the organ says that "the Journal, in its blind fury, singles ont the medical examiner for its particular maledictions." The ssertion that our paragraph contains any 'maledictious," particular or general, is a reckless assertion. It is unfounded. It is, like a nightmare, the wayward ereation of a brain of stomach hadly out of order. The Editor tel his readers that we "single out the medical examiner," and straightway he adds that there are wo. Well, as there are two, and as we mentioned no name, we wonder which of the two it is that he ealls "the medical examiner"—the definite article-and what right he has to assume that we referred to one rather than to the other, or that we referred to either rather than to medical examiners elsewhere. Instead of singling out "the medleal examiner," we spoke of certain persons examined as not being "exempted by the

Our neighbor thinks that we have no right to intermeddle with the affairs of a Board of Enr dment, as such a board is as likely to unders'and its own business as we are to understand it for them. Certainly we have not presumed very far in saying that a board should be careful not to enroll men who can't endure the fatigues of war. We are just as much interested in that matter as the Board or the medical examiner or anybody else. And it is our "privilege" to utter freely, so loug as Mr. Lincoln permits it, what we think the public interests demand.

heed to think that he knows more of genera hip than we do of the affairs of a Board. The uth is, he criticises everybody and everythin o the whole circle of military, moral, religiou political, physical, and Intellectual being, and et he thinks that we transcend all allowab mits in saying that a Best of shouldn't force mirm men into the armies though we have no aid that any Board ever did. He knows : ttle about Enrolment that he can't spell th

Our neighbor has a very bad propen ity t squote. It is chronic. It is a part of hi lood, bones, and gristle. He can no more get id of it than he can step out of his tlesh in a hot ay, and let the cool winds "sigh through his ibs." He says that we are "very tender or ulmonary hemorrhage," and that we " profess o be horrified that persons with that affliction should be held to draft." What we said was his: "It is stated that, in very many cases persons who have had hemorrhage of the lung epeatedly and are threatened with consump hat persons afflicted with pulmonary hemorrhages can be fit to perform military duty, but loesn't like to argue that persons "threatened rith consumption" can be, and so he does himself the kind favor to omit all allusion to that point. We didn't say, as he would have his readers think we did, that hemorrhages alone are necessarily a disqualification for service We haven't much medical science, but we guess we are quite as much a doctor as he is a diffician or an Editor.

We certainly know a great deal more about he grounds of exemption than our neighbo loes, whether he is "the medical examiner not. Look, reader, at the last paragraph quote elect twenty-four members of Congress, but no from him above. Yes, look at what he says office is to be filled by general ticket. The pres- and laugh if you must. He tells us that the law exempt. a man who has lost the whole o nis left thumb, or a part of the iudex finger o his right hand. He thinks that the law doesn' thosen, the Democrats elected the State Auditor | exempt for the loss of the right thumb, bu does for that of the left. Now the truth is, the law doesn't exempt for the loss of the left thuml ward, 254,171. The present candidates for Con- but does for that of the right. Our neighbor's head is turned exactly around. His face i where the back of his head should be. His nose must have a hard time of it. He can lool straight down and see the seat of his breechesif he has them on. We must fry to do some thing for hlm.

The abolition organ says of Mr. Bijur's peech on Saturday evening: He presented with equal clearness and beauty the gennine conservation of the Baltimore Convention, which seeks not to supplant the work of Washington by any reactionary Montgomery schemes of aristocracy and despotism, but proposes, in the mode provided for in the venerated instrument itself, a single amendment, in perfect accord with the spirit of its framers, by which the country the spirit of its framers, by The Editor of the organ boasts that the platorm of the Baltimore Convention proposes of Yes, he speaks of the constitution as "ven ated," although his "venerated" Administration has openly and defiantly set all the provision of the "venerated" constitution at naught, he aimself all the while defending and applauding the sacrilege. We have heard of "venerabl ruins," and perhaps it is with some such idea that he talks about the venerable or "venerated" onstitution. Very likely 'the fool who fired the Ephesian dome" visited the spot afterwards o look upon the venerable blackeded timbers and the venerable white ashes. But we don't nnderstand or want to understand this business of destroying the constitution and then vener

Whatever the Baltimore Convention may have said about amending a single feature of the con stitution "in the mode the constitution itsel provides," we don't suppose that even the eraziest of the abolitionists will gravely contend that Mr. Lincolu undertakes, in his sweeping erushing, devastating emancipation proclan tion, to amend the constitution "in the mode provided for hi the veuerated instrument itself,' and yet the convention and the whole radical party would fain sustain him in his high-handed, monstrous, and wholly unparalleled policy, Away, then, with their wretched babble about the mode prescribed by itself! Out upon it, and out upon them-the first as gibberish, the last

At nearly the whole of votes in the respective districts two years ago, | the voting places in the State all the officers of election are exclusively abolitionists, and there is positive and couclusive evidence that there will be immense ballot-box stuffing and vast importations of voters and all sorts of illegal votiug. far beyond anything ever known or dreamed o in past times in any country. Add to this that all the Lincoln officers and soldiers and all who will consent to vote for the Lincoln ticket on this oue occasion are paroled home from the armies for the purpose of voting, while the McClellan officers and soldiers must endure without a day's respite the hardships of war, And now we see, from the subjoined document that, by order of the Secretary of War, the housands of abolition soldiers, paroled home to Indiana to elect the Liucoln ticket, are to be passed over all the Indiana railroads, the ac ount to be charged to the Jeffersonville Rail. coad Company, and of course paid from the Inited States Treasury! Truly the dead weight of the mountains of corruption piled up by the Administration would seem enough to sink a continent to the bottom of the oceau: ORDERED.

Conductors of trains will note on the back of e furloughs the points to and from which th older has passed. By order of the Secretary of War.

A CRITICAL WISPACRE.-We spoke on Satur lay of the importance of "a general dispersio f information among the people." The Editor f the abolition organ, who is afflicted with the nicer hallucination that he is a critic, sneers a our use of the word "dispersion." His sneer erve no better purpose than to disfigure his own ace, which needs no extras in that way. If he will send and borrow our Worcester (we have uo dea that he keeps such a thing as a dictionary imself) he can see that a regular definition of dispersion" is "diffusion." Isn't it rather ludi rous to see a person setting himself up to utter the oracles of criticism, whilst daily using such expressions as "this much," and "that much, and "this large," and "that large," and "this the material is of any account. Come over to our office on the morning of election day, and we will give you a stick of candy, and go with you to the polls. And, if you will promise to keep quiet and not look frightened, perhaps Lincoln's hirelings—seeing you in good company—will let you pass without serious molestation.—Press.

You deserve a candy-stick yourself-all but he candy. Perhaps we might, in your comoany, pass unmolested at the polls, but probaly you don't reflect that it may be more endurable to be molested out of an abolitionist's company than unmolested in it. publish a certificate of her cure, which is in substance as follows:

TO THE PROPERTOES OF THE S—P—H—L—S REMERY:
SIR: Agreeably to your request, I write to inform you of the beneficial effects of your medicine in my case. I commenced taking it on the 5th of March last, and have taken almost two bottles. For several weeks hefore I commenced taking this medicine my foot was so sore that I could not stand upon it, and almost every one who saw it said that it must be amputated. When I commenced using the medicine I could not bear more than one dose per day, BEING TOO MERLIE, after which I could bear two doses per day, BUING NOME, for over a week, and then I could stand the full dose. My foot is now almost well, and is only affected by great Itchings which almest always follows the healing of foul ulcers—in short, I feel myself creep, neverthelpes, I shall continue the use of your remedy until every sign of it has disappeared from my system. And I cannot conclude this certificate without giving your remedy a most hearty recommendation to all who have been so unfortunate as to contract this loathsome disease.

OUR POSTOFFICE .- We do not know what has been assigned to the Louisville Postoffice by the new regulations of the Department, but it does a very large amount of business. Some idea may be formed of the work done in it when we state that there are ordinarily handled fifty thousand letters every day and that thirty thousand are delivered weekly to individuals or firms, and yet ours is regarded by some as one of the smaller offices in the United States. In three months stamps and envelopes have been sold to the value of $20,-270 16. No one visiting the premises would imagine that there was anything in the way of work going on there, nuless permitted to visit e interior, where would be found the many erks as busy as bees in receiving, sorting and arranging for distribution the thousand of letters, books, pamphlets, newspapers, and other mailable matter. When we consider the vast amount of work done in our posteffice, the necessary haste in which it is performed, and the numberless different directions in which the various missives must be despatched, it is astonishing to us that mistakes are not more frequently made than now occur in the prompt sending off and delivery of mail matter. Nothing but systematic efficiency and unsleeping vigilance prevent unlstakes from ocentring hourly which would be very detrimental to our citizens, and particularly to our mercantile community. We are all under deep obligations to Dr. Speed and his numerous subordinates for the clock-work regnlarity of the Louisville postoffice.

GULTY OF THEFT.-Philip Bledner stole a bran-new suit of Uncle Sam's blue elothing, and thought that he had perpetrated quite a joke on the old gentleman. Some of Uncle Sam's boys were on the lookout for thieves, and gobbled up Bledner and his confiscated property. He was arraigned before the Provost Marshal yesterday, and found guilty of the crime with which he was charged. Before the laugh cornes in, he will find that his little joke will I reve semething of a bitter pill to swallow.

Wells should be taught that he has been guilty of an offence that ealls for severest punishment.

Fined Into.-The down train on the Bardstown Branch Railroad was fired into yesterday morning by a party of bushwhackers one mile this side of Samuel's Statlon. Nobody was injured by the firing. Washington, October 10. \\
I o Major-General Due:
Reports have been received by this department
ons Generals Butler, Shorman, Thomas, S. erier, and Burbridge, showing the favorable conlition of military affairs in their respective the first three respective class of operation.

The purpose of General Grant's visit to Washigton having been accomplished, he returned to 1 is headquarters on Saturday, but there has one no telegraphic communication since his arising these saturday.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 8, 11.30 P. M. NASHTILLE, Oct. 8, 11,30 P. M. I have not beard direct from General Shernan, but General Coree, who is at Alatoona, a forms me that Sherman is at Kenesaw, repairing the railroad between Alatoona and Atlanta. It has plenty of provisions, and, so far as the nain army is concerned, feels secure. General Gousseau reports that Forrest has escaped him by crossing the Tennessee river on Hatboat above and below Florence on the 6th, while h (Rorsseau) was detained by high water. G. 11. THOMAS, Major-General. ALATOONA, Oct. 8, P. M.

Cereet Retract:

I reached the Kenesaw mountains on the 6th of O toler, jest in time to witness at a distince the attack on Alatoona. I had anticipated this attack, and had ordered from Rome, 6a., cars with reinforcements. The attack was met and repulsed, the enemy losing some 200 dead, and more than 1,600 wounded and prise ters. Our loss was about 700 in the aggregate. The enemy captured small garriso has at Big Shanty and Ackworth, and burned about seven triles of our railroad, but we have Alatoona and Atlanta, and an abundance of provisions. Hood moved rapilly back to Dallas, and I am watching him in ease he tries to reach Kingston or Rome. Atlanta is perfectly safe to us, and this army is better off than In Signed W. T. SHERMAN, Maj.-Gen. Woodstock, Va., Oct. 7-F. M.

I have the honor to report my command as is point to-night. I commenced moving back on Port Republic, Mount Crawford, Bridge on Port Republic, Mount trawford, Bridgeater, and Illerisonburg vesterday morning he grain and forage in advance of these point ad previously been destroyed. In movin ack to this point, the whole country from Bhidge to the North Mountain has been man menable for a rebel army. I have destroyed to the property of the p si ed to the troops not less than 30,000 she army over four herd of stock, and killed and isseed to the troops not less than 30,000 sheep. This destruction embraces the Luray Valley and Little Fort Valley, as well as the main valley. A large number of horses have been obtained, a proper estimate of which I cannot now make. Litt. John R. Meille, my engineer officer, was nurdered beyond Harrisonburg, near Datton. For this atrocious act all the houses within an area of live miles were burned.

Since I came to the valley from the ferry exercy train, every small party, and every straggler has been bushwacked by the people, many of whom have protective papers from commanders who have been hitherto in that valley. The eople here are getting sick of the war. They have had no reason to complain, because they have been living in great abundance. I have not been followed by the enemy to this point, with the exception of a small force of rebel carbalry that showed themselves some distance behind my rear guard to-day. A party of one hindred of the 8th Ohio cavalry, which I had stationed at the bridge over the North Shenandersh, near Mt. Jackson, was attacked by MeNeil with 175 men while they were asleep, and the whole party dispersed or captured. I think they all will turn ups part have reached here. MeNiel was fatally wounded, and tell into our leads.

General Burbridge makes the following report of his corations:

LOV. E. M. Stanton: e met the enemy three and a half mile from Saltwell on the morning of the 2d, and drove him to his works around the salt-works, where he was strongly introuched on the Blue iver, supported by a heavy force under E-hols, Williams, Vaughan, and, it is said, Breckinridge. We at once attacked him and drove him from its works on our left and centre, and held him to check on the right and finally in spite of his works on our left and centre, and held him in check on the right, and finally, in spite of artiflery and superior numbers, whipped him at every point, and forced him back to his own works. In the evening our aumunition gave ont, and, holding the position taken until night; I withdrew the command in excellent order and spirits. The occupation of the works themselves was only prevented by the failure of our ammunition. I learn from prisoners that the enemy's force was between six thousand and eight thousand, and that Breckinridge was present with four thousand men from Lynchburg. ent with four thousand men from Lynchburg A detachment sent to Pound Gap, force sturing several prisoners, a number of sma arms, and one piece of artillery. Our loss in all is about three hundred and fifty, and that of the enemy more. I will report more fully by mail in the morning. On the 30th, I received an order from General Sherman to relim.

S. G. BURBRIDGE, Maj.-Gen. The telegraph line between Fortress Monroe and City Point was broken by a heavy storm and is not yet repaired. The latest militury nutelligence from there is the following telegram from General Butler: Headquarters Department Virginia and North Carolina, Oct. 8.

CHAPTER III.

THE FRIEND FOUND AT LAST. Just in the ontskirts of the little village toward which our herolne had looked so long, stood a dilapidated, low, log hut. Summer and winter a thin cloud of bluish smoke ever puffed from the tumble-down old chimney, and beyoud that no sign of habitation was outwardly visible, save an old gray eat that sometimes would pur and mew round the door, which was always closed, without it opened momentarily to admit the entrance or egress of some visitor. The lahabitant was never seen.

"Who could visit there?" Well, dear reader, many who felt impatience to peer into the future-many who dld not suffer or enjoy enough in the present sought the mistress of this humble hovel, the far-famed fortune-teller of Leesburg; and here, just as the twilight of another day was wrapping chilly folds of shadaw round the earth, Adele Launcelot paused, foot-sore and weary.

Two days had she been without food-two nights been chilled to the heart-and now, when the goal was almost won, she felt she could go no further. Just on the confines of elvilization she paused to die, because she was starving. The house seemed uninhabited; she would enfound upon the highway, a houseless wanderer. votedly I love von-say, sweet Marion?" She raised her haud; It could not quite reach the latch, when she lay prostrate on the steps. In a half-pleading, half-commanding way to She staggered forward; she clutched it; she Marion Stanhope, who stood with her figure pushed against it; it resisted her weak strength, turned from him, yet her face, white and strange and a human voice, quernlous with age, called was watching his own-longingly, wildly, car

A human voice! Oh, a reseue from the seath ing flames; a strong hand to guide her from the gurgling waters. The limpid ripple of a spring and cool green grass to a dying wanderer on the sandy desert-a human voice! The life sparkled fresh and vigorous, yet her joy made her almost speechless. "Tis 1," she cried, faintly; "for God's sake open and let me in!" Footsteps hobbled across the floor, and, as the latch was lifted and the door opened, Adele Lauucclot fell across the threshold. She had fainted; the realization was too much. A wlerd looking old woman, bent almost double with age, peered out. Ifer tawny, yellow skin was shrivelled to her bones like parchiuent; her gray hair streamed over her shoulder in a silvery veil; a searlet cloth cap, with a long black plume, was perched on top of her head; a scarlet cloak enveloped her whole figure save her two loug, bare, skinny armys. Oue fleshless hand held a pine torch, while the other eaught the lifeless lady and dragged her within the hul, shutting the door quickly and drawing the bolt violeutly after lt.

"This is what comes o' my taking homeless wanderers into my house o' nights. A dead loss on my hands," and, sticking the torch in a wooden socket which protruded from the jagged arch of the fire-place, she picked Adele up and laid her on a low bed in one corner of the room, while she went to work to bring her to sensibility again.

The room was low and square built—the floor bare—two rush-bottom chairs—a little table with a deep drawer-au iron kettle swinging on the hook over the fire, which hurned ruddily, and a double row of shelves filled with hottles of dark queer looking liquids-a few dried herbs, an old broken plate-a eracked bowl and pewter spoon -a string of snake rattles and a skull-with the rickety couch, comprised every compartment of furniture in the miserable hovel, where one haven of rest to Adele!

eves, and looked with a weary gratitude up to the aged face so curiously bent above her. "Oh! you are so good to me!" she said.

"Never mind now!" said the witch-woman; "we brimming with some dark, steaming liquid. Adele obeyed her aud almost immediately sank into a deep sleep.

Then the old witch took down her death's head and commenced marking on it. After that she put the rattles round her neck and sat down beside the invalid. She would occasionally smooth down her hand over the smooth, pure face, and so often as she did so the eyelids would quiver, and the heautiful lips break litto a sweet but plaintively sad smile.

The hours were on with only the singling and hissing of the fire, and the sleeper's deep breathlug, and the old woman's half audible gibberish to break in upou the monotony of the seene. At last, Adele woke, looking calm and re-Raising herself on one hand, she reached out the other, and laid it upon the withcred, brawny palm of the old woman. Her eyes were so deep and earnest, her voice so pleading and passionately sad. "Madam." "What is It?"

"I want you to be my frieud."

"I am your friend, beautiful and unfortunate. I feel for you deeply, truly, for you have suffered. I am your friend, remember so long as we both shall live," and the wierd woman spoke in a deep yet excited tone. "Oh! thank you, I am so grateful! I am ell alone in the world now, and to you I want to lay bare my life-history."

And Adele related unto this woman all that I have told you so far, my reader. Tears flowed and lips quivered while she wen on. Ere she ceased the suu was mounting the gray stairs of dawn. The old woman said to her: "I am growing old. I choose you as my daughter of Science. I will to you impart my magic art. I am growing old and need but little. The gold that I have hoarded for years is yours on condition that you will swear to be revenged on this man just as I shall say. Swear!" "I swear," sald Adele, solemnly and earu-

The old woman rose, and turning up a corner of the bed, displayed a perfect sheet of gold pleces which she commenced to gather up and put in a leather bag, which, being filled, she handed to Adele, saying: "I trust you; you have my fortune, and now for my art and your revenge." And she talked on in a wild, strange, excited mauner, while Adele leaned eagerly forward, drinking in each gesture, each word.

The scene closes with the rattles about Adele's neek; one hand upon the death's head, the other clasped in the brawny palm of the old woman, and her eyes deep and dark, looking far off in the dim future.

CHAPTER IV.

THE MYSTERY-THE LOVERS. It was a strauge apartment, and well might it be called the habitation of "The Mystery;" well might Marlon Stauhope shudder as she To grade and pave the unpaved portion of the found herself within the four walls, the door closely barred till such time as the Fate, unto which she had rendered her freedom, should say, "Open sesame" to the sable slave without. Heavy velvet curtains, embroidered with strange gold and silver and erunson hieroglyphics, covered the walls; no ray of light made any object perfectly distinguishable; only one small lamp swung from the centre of the ceiling, with a crimson globe that cast a flery luridness over everything. A death's head rested on a round table with a deep drawer, and round it was wreathed a neeklace of snake rattles. A large black velvet chair, with a canopy of gold about lt, was raised upon a little platform which was also draperied in black cloth and gold; another chair was placed for the visitor, and into this Marion Stanhope sauk, half exhausted with fear and excitement The black velvet curtains were drawn back and flashed over the observer a flood of brilliant, scintillating light—the eye could scarce brook the dazzling radiance. They closed almost lnstantaneously again, and Mystery stood upon the throne silent and motionless. Her presence seemed but the shadowy mist of a silver veil. From out the shining folds a voice, low and breezy, almost inaudible, questioned_

What would'st thou? 'O, spirit!" murmured Marion, leaning eager ly forward, utterly earried away by some inex plicable fascination, "I would know my future!" "Would'st thou know it, good or ill?"

'I fear not," replied Marion, breathless with n indescribable excitement, only understood by hose who yield to similar influences. Slowly the death's head commenced to reolve, and the rattles to wave in and out from cir circle in a curious way, and all over the oth's head small crimson devices appeared. The presence was stationary, and again the sice spoke, no longer breezy and low, but cold nd clear, cutting against the car like some arply-edged instrument of torture.

Marion shuddered with indefinable dread. You love-love unwisely and too well-love fully and passionately-for it you must reap reward bitter in the extreme, unless von turn an the temptation ere it is too late. You ave been wilfully entired into sin-you expect a marry-I bid you, with the voice of prophetic arning, beware of the bridal ring; beware of he bridal day-beware, above all, of the perlidious bridegroom, or the sln of remorse be pon your head. There le an impassible barrier between you and the man you would marry. He is not free-but bound-bound. There is a wild seagirt shore where a storm rages fiercely, and the furious waves engulf a worunu's form and yet she lices. Beware of your bridal day; seek to know no more,"

"O God!"-and Marlon Stanhope sprang forward mudly, passionately; but the velvet enrtains parted-the light flashed dazzlingly over her again; when she raised her eyes the silvery myslery had vanished, and the sable slave held the door of en. She went out scaree conscious. "Durling Marion! come to me precious one! ter; at least, it would shield her from the night | Tell me why von are so cold and shy to Ferdidews, and she could die there instead of being hand! Don't you know how dearly-how de-

And Ferdinand Launcelot held out his hand There he stood-beautiful, glorlous tempter

that he was! so handsome, so king-like, in al his wicked, Irresistible faschnation. Oh! how women worship physical beauty in a man, how od-like-how great it seems-mind, heart, fade nto contemptible littleness, in comparison with pefect physical development. At least, to sue natures as Marion Stanhope. Eager, arden cantiful herself, she could but bow before it i Ferdinaud Launcelot. His hands reached or to her. Oh! how she yearned to go to hir The warning words of the Mystery held he hack. "Beware of the perfidious bridegroom he is not free, but bound-bound!"

The tempter spoke inspirlingly-ardently making the rich, warm blood flush her temples and then crimson back to her heart with blust es, leaving even her lips pallid.

"Marion-my Marion-come "O,-O,-Ferdinand - don't!" broke wild rom her lips, "don't, you hart me!" He smiled, a hewitching, fascinating smil is hands still reached ont to her as he ro om the seat into which he had suddenly hrown himself. His head was inclined forward, his lips apart, his beautiful, shadowy blue eves reading her very soul; his voice, purely anid with wavering, trembling love nuise: 'Marion, my Marion, once more I say come. She clasped her hand as if searce knowing what to do-how to act; she looked away from im, he tempted her so with his glorious face. It was impossible to resist him. She looked t him but ouce again; the smile was fading rom his lip, from his eye; but he still held out

With a glad cry, a murmur of music, she sprang to his arms, and, clasped close to his heart, she turued her bright young face, like the flower to the snulight. For the tender, passionate kisses he pressed there with his beautiful, loving mouth.

"Why do you do so, durling?" he whispered. Don't you know it wounds me inexpressibly would imagine humanity could scaree exist a for you to treat me coldly or with distrust? I moment without pollution. Yet this was a sweet love you so much more dearly, if possible, when you trust me. Why, then, ever stand off and After again and again applying restoratives look at me in that shy, indifferent way, when you know the welcome my heart always givevou? -- say little one." "O, Ferdinand, I had my fortune told by "The Mystery," and she told me you wanted to marry me-told me how dearly I loved you—said it was sinful. Bade me will talk about that after while, drlnk this," and | beware of you, of my bridal day, or I would she held the old cracked bowl to the pallid lips bitterly repent it—said you were not free! Oh! Ferdinand, do you love any one but your little Marion? Are you not free?" "Yes, sweet oue, free as alr, save from the love-links with which you fetter me-glorious captivity!-and I don't love any one on this broad earth but my little

Marion-heautiful vislon that she ls." Closer he nestled her to his heart ere he spoke again; then, raising her face in his haud so that he might read her thoughts-"loved you, angel Marion, even before I had a right-loved you when my first wife, Adele, was on earth, aud

you never knew it." Still she sat beside him, his arm around her drinking in the poison with the sweet, only because he held the draught to her llps. O, woman, woman, weak, frail womau! Even as in the lays of Paradise, thou art tempted and yieldes temptation ever. Marion Stanhope, revelling in the sweet reali ation that her hero-idol loved her, noted not the last sentence, so intent was she upon the thought that he was free.

He added: "Now, darling, for fear The Mystery may bear you cutlrely from me next time you go out to search for your future, tell me when I may call you my wife. Marion: when tuav I make out my future joy?" "Ferdinand"-and she clasped his hand all the rmer that she was about to express a doubt-

'that Mystery told me something about a torm-a foam-dashed cliff-a drowning woman who still lines. Was that Adele, Ferd?" Like a thunder cloud grew his brow. The blood faded from his crimson mouth, and he quickly stroked his moustache as if he would fain repress his anger thus. She shrank away from him, but with a quick, passionate gesture he eaught her close again, and then, seeing how his vehemence alarmed her, he said: "Never express any doubts about me, Mariou my Marion, if you would have me love you. All I ask is obedieuce and trust. Now, goodbye; I'll go see this Mystery who has shattered your nervous system so completely. Bye-bye! and he waved his hand. Alas! the pleasure of seeing the Mystery was deuled him; yet near,

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bittors, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackeon, c' this city, because I was prejudiced against them feat many year, nader the impression that they wast objectly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my riend, Bobert Shoemaker, Mac, for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them when untering from great and long seat thus definition. The use of three bottles of these bitters at the beginning of the present year, was self-lowed by avidant relief and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental wigor which I had not felt for the product of the process of the process of the process of the process of the product of
